HackBerry A10 now shipping for $65 (Android, Linux dev board)

09/26/2012 at 4:38 PM by Brad Linder

The HackBerry A10 is a developer board with an ARM Cortex-A8 processor. It's sold as a PC without a case, much like the Raspberry Pi. But the $60 HackBerry A10 has a faster processor, more memory and storage, and more input and output ports than the Raspberry Pi.

Miniand first introduced the HackBerry A10 in early August. Now the mini computer is in stock and shipping from the Miniand store — although supplies are limited at the moment.

The HackBerry A10 has a 1.2 GHz Allwinner A10 ARM Cortex-A8 processor with Mali 400 graphics. It has 4GB of built-in storage, an SDHC card for up to 32GB of additional storage, and 512MB to 1GB of RAM.

Right now only the 1GB model is in stock. It sells for $65.

The device also features 2 USB 2.0 ports, 10/100 Ethernet, 802.11n WiFi, HDMI output, a 3.5mm microphone jack, composite and component video output, and a 4-pin serial port.

Miniand says the HackBerry A10 supports Google Android 4.0 and Linux, which is no surprise, since it has the same chipset as the Linux-friendly MK802 mini PC.

Nice but no SATA, which makes cubieboard.org more interesting as an A10 breakout board.

For that much you might as well get it already enclosed for $40.
